THE CANAL TROUBLE. - The Cumberland News gives the following particulars of the burning of the steamer Star, No. 3, mentioned in yesterday's Gazette :-"During the day the crew of the burned steamer arrived in this city, and related the details of the affair, substantially as follows :-About twelve o'clock Sunday night, the crew were awakened by a party of twenty-five men who had boarded the boat at the lock dam No. 6, about fifty miles east of this city and a mile or two from the scene of the blockade. One of the crew thought the man who aroused him was a thief, and raised a hammer to strike him. The sleepy mariner was immediately surrounded and told to 'drop that weapon,' which he did with great celerity, on perceiving that the party was numerous and that each man wore an impromptu mask, consisting of a handker chief bound about his head and hung down over his face. The captain and crew of the steamer were removed to the canal bank and escorted up the tow-path about two hundred yards and left to go where they pleased, but were cautioned not to go in the direction of the blockade. In the meantime others of the mob had gone into the forward cabin of the boat and built a fire there, while others fired up the furnace and loaded the safety valve, in order that the boiler should explode and ensure the complete destruction of the steamer and her machinery. The incendiaries then stood on the tow path for an hour watching the burning boat. The cables soon barned to the water's edge, whon the boat sunk. The masked party then took their departure in the direction of the blockade, and the steamer's crew, Jos. Richards, captain; Andrew Garrett, eteersman, and Jackson Baker and - Tagear, engineers, crossed the river and went to Sir Joho's Run, where they took the first train for Cumberland,"

The boat was valued at $5,000, and was partly insured. It was believed that her machipery is injured. The wreck lies in the channel and will have to be removed before navigation is resumed. It is claimed that the boat was not burned by boatmen, but by farmers, who object to steamers, because they use no hay or grain. The other two boats, which were threatened with burning, have turned back to Cumberland, escorted by a Sheriff's

A dispatch from Cumberland, last night, says :- It is stated to-night that a number of eanal captains, alarmed at the burning of the steam barge yesterday, have gone down the expected. eanal after their boats, and will force them through the blockade if possible.

The Baltimore Sun says :"A meeting of directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, which was called for yesterday, was postponed because of the ab sence of Mr. A. P. Gorman, in consequence of family bereavement. It will probably take place to day, and several of the parties interested are in the city. The object of the conference is to discuss the present situation of affairs growing out of the canal boatmen's strike, &c., with a view of ascertaining if the troubles can be arranged. A committee of boatmen will present their case, as instructed at a meeting which delegated them that duly.

Fine. - Au alarm of fire was sounded about four c'clock this morning, caused by the dis covery of flames issuing from an unoccupied frame house on the north side of Wilkes street, between Fairfax and Royal. The building is the same one recently occupied by Mr. George Walker, and which so many attempts have been heretofore made to burn. The flames this morning originated between the main and back buildings, and were undoubtedly the work of an incondiary, as the house had been vacant for a week, and traces of coal oil were plainly discornable. The fire had gained considerable headway when it was discovered, and although the firemen were promptly on the ground, as soon as the alarm was given, they found the original building and the one adjoining on the west, and occupied by officer James Hepburg, wrapped in flames. The house in which the fire originated was almost totally destroyed, while that of officer Hepburn had the roof and upper story burned off. The house on the east of the fire, owned and occupied by Capt. James F. Webster, also had the roof and part of the weatherboarding burned off, besides much dans age to ceilings by water. Captain Webster's loss will amount to about $200, on which there is no insurance. Officer Hepburn sustained a slight loss by the burning of a bedstead and breakage of furniture in removing it. The two frame houses were owned by a colored woman named Rachel Dawson, who lives in Williams burg, Va., and are insured for $500 each in the Home Insurance Company of New York, of which Wise & Co. are the Alexandria agents. The incendiary was evidently a determined and vigilant one, for Captain Webster has been watching the place for some time in consequence of the many attempts to fire it, and had only gone into his house about an hour before the fire broke out, which fact must have been noted by the incendiary before he commenced his nofarious werk.

NEW DRAW .- The Baltimere and Potomac and Alexandria and Fredericksburg railroad compunies are engaged in preparing to place on the Long Bridge, at the Virginia channel, a new and improved draw, in place of the pivot draw aiready there. The present draw, it will be remembered, was made with one end longer than the other, and the new one will be ballenced in the centre. The wood work is being framed at the south end of the bridge, where the timber and iron is being landed on a new wharf pier, and quite a number of men are engaged on the work. It is contemplated to make the draw a first class piece of work and a permanent structure.

THE LATE STRATFORD FENDALL .- On Monday afternoon a meeting of the Bar Association of the District of Columbia was held to take suitable action concerning the death of Mr. Stratford Feudall, Mr. Walter D. Davidge in the chair. Remarks eulogistic of the deceased were made by J. E. Norris, A. K. Browne and F. T. Browning, and resolutions of respect to the memory and of regret for the death of the deceased were adopted. The funeral took place in the evening. It was largely attended, and the remains temporarily deposited in a vault in Glenwood Cemetery. The body will be finally interred in the family burial lot at this city.

Coroner's Verdict.

Coroner Verdon has finished his inquest into the death of Mrs. Anna Kohler, who was found with her throat cut in the woods, near Plainfield, N. J., on the 18th of July. Her ante-mortem reads :- As I, Anna Kohler never thought the last hour of death would come, and I never think I shall be well again, so will I mention the last words. My husband, Franz Kohler, brought me on the 17th day of July, 1877, from New York to the vicinity of the place where I now am to work on a farm. As he had me in the vicinity of this place in the woods he gave me a cut in the throat, and took my clothing and jewelry, or valuable and he thought I was dead, and left me lying in my trouble. My man and I were to work before together with Mr. Douglas in Long Island. can give no reason why he wanted to end my life. (Signed) ANNA KOHLER.

The verdict was that she died from injuries inflicted by her husband. Franz Kohler sailed for Europe, and was arrested in Queenstown on Sunday last.
